Breck Long goes around the state telling the people that the industrial depression in this country was the direct effect of our refusal to accept the peace treaty President Wilson brought home with him from Europe, which indicates that either Mr. Long hasn't a very comprehensive grasp on present economic conditions abroad or not a very comprehensive grasp upon the intelligence of the people whom he is addressing. The first requisite in a commercial transaction is either cash or credit, and Europe, as is well known to all who are not asleep or imbecilic, has neither. And so whatever contribution the failing market in Europe has made to our industrial slump comes wholly from the fact that we saw no safe customers in Europe. It has been argued by pro-European adherents of Mr. Long's stamp here that had we joined in the League of Nations we would have been able to sustain our foreign markets on a basis of prosperity to ourselves by loaning Europe the money from our national treasury, raised by bond sales, of course, since there would be no other way of getting it, with which to buy our goods, but he would be a veritable ass indeed who would loan money where he has been afraid to sell his goods. We have ten billion dollars out over in Europe now on just that kind of a proposition, and Mr. Long and his political friends would ring us in for that much more if they were given the chance. If Europe were a safe customer with whom to make a loan, none would know it better than J. P. Morgan, who has been over there for months looking into the credit stability of European governments, but so far as the public is informed, he has not risked a dollar of his own money lately in overseas financial ventures. Europe is not stabilizing her credit for the reason that the fostering of political and territorial ambitions of her leading nations are holding them in a state of bankruptcy, their expenditures far exceed their revenues, and taxation among them all has practically reached its limit. We cannot go to their aid further in such a situation without great risk of financial loss and probable political involvement; and our Wilsons and Longs would urge us into these for the advancement of their own political fortunes, could they once induce the people into returning them to power through a demagogic misrepresentation of how the foreign situation affects our own industrial prosperity.

The sublimity of gall lies with the Democratic politicians who are telling us they would "introduce economy" if the people will kindly hand the government back to them. And yet they in dorse the Wilson administration with all its record of criminal waste and plunder. When you here a Democrat prate of economy, just think of the taxes his party has stung you with, and tell him what the major of the American "lost battalion" told the Germans.

The Senate is going to inquire into the advance of the price of gasoline. Ha! ha! we can just see John D. cringing.

The Hyde administration has reduced state taxes. It is not responsible for county, municipal or school tax levies. The Hyde tax plan is the same that Governor Gardner tried to put in effect.

Under the present tariff law foreign goods come into this country on their foreign valuation for duty payments, when there is a duty, but they are sold here at prices approximately the same as goods of the same class of American manufacture. The much lauded benefit of a low tariff to the consumer does not materialize. The already high import duties on the whole

Those 200 quarts which Senator Reed says are reposing in Breck Long's cellar may be a handy solace to the latter after the primary. Salt River scenery loses much of its depressing gloom after a snifter or two.

Senator Reed does Herbert Hoover an injustice. As President Wilson's official price fixer, Hoover always fixed them so the consumer had to pay more. Just look at his late act to prevent the coal barons from profiteering during the miners' strike, it multiplies the small buyer $1.50 more on the ton.

Young Hog's Great Weight.
Green Bay, Wis. J. Gabriel Town of Braunau, exhibited at the Farmers' Institute in Khondike a strip of flesh from a twenty-month-old hog raised on his farm that tipped the scales when alive at 1,017 pounds and when dressed at 717 pounds. The strip was cut from the back of the porker and was eight inches thick without the bone. The hog was a cross between a Poland China and a Chester White. The hog was fed only corn the last two months it was alive.

Tired

"I was weak and run-down," relates Mrs. Eula Burnett, of Dalton, Ga. "I was thin and just felt tired all the time. I didn't rest well. I wasn't over hungry. I knew, by this, I needed a tonic, and as there is none better than—

CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic

"I began using Cardui," continues Mrs. Burnett. "After my first bottle, I slept better and ate better. I took four bottles. Now I'm well, feel just fine, eat and sleep, my skin is clear and I have gained and sure feel that Cardui is the best tonic ever made."

Thousands of other women have found Cardui just as Mrs. Burnett did. It should help you.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Washington County Circuit Court, to August term, 1922, in vacation June 22, 1921.

State of Missouri, County of Washington, ss. In the Circuit Court of Washington County, to August term, 1922.

State of Missouri, at the relation and to use of George Carr, collector of the revenue of Washington County, in the State of Missouri, plaintiff, Against Joseph B. Weigel, John Frost, trustee, and Patrick Walsh, mortgagee, and the unknown heirs, consort, devisees, donees, alienees, mesne and remote, voluntary and involuntary grantees of Joseph B. Weigel, John Frost, trustee, Patrick Walsh, mortgagee, and all unknown persons interested in the real estate herein described, defendants.

At this day comes the plaintiff herein, by his attorney, before the clerk of the circuit court in vacation, and files his petition, and affidavit, alleging, among other things, that Joseph B. Weigel, John Frost, trustee, and Patrick Walsh, mortgagee, defendants herein, are not residents of the State of Missouri. Plaintiff further states that said non-resident and unknown persons interested in the real estate herein described cannot be summoned in this action by the ordinary process of law.

Whereupon it is ordered by the clerk in vacation that order of publication be made that said defendants be notified that said plaintiff has commenced suit against them in this court, the object and general nature of which is to enforce the lien of the state of Missouri for back taxes due for the year 1919 on the following real estate belonging to said defendants, to wit:

Tract No. 1. Undivided two-thirds of the southeast quarter of section eleven (11), township thirty nine (39), north range one (1) east of the fifth p.m., containing 166.67 acres, lying and being in said County of Washington and State of Missouri.

An itemized statement in the nature of a tax bill, showing the amount of taxes and costs now due on said real estate, for the year aforesaid, amounting to the sum of $5.83, is filed with said petition and made a part thereof; and that unless the said defendants be and appear in this court at the next term thereof, to be begun and holden at the city of Potosi, in said county, on the 28th day of August, 1922, and on or before the sixth day of said term, if the term shall so long continue, and if not then on or before the last day of said term, answer or plead to the petition in said cause, the same shall be taken as confessed, and judgment will be rendered accordingly. And it is further ordered that copy hereof be published according to law, in the Potosi Journal, a weekly newspaper published in said county of Washington and state of Missouri.

State of Missouri, County of Washington, ss. I, Jos. Cresswell, clerk, hereby certify the foregoing to be a true copy as the same appears of record in my office. Given under my hand and seal of office, in Potosi, this 12th day of May 1922.

(Seal) Jos. Cresswell, Clerk.

GETS BRIDE THROUGH APPLE

Florida Man Weds Daughter of Orphanist Who Wrote Her Name on Wrapper.

Wenatchee, Wash.—A girl's name on the wrapper of a northwest apple, read by the owner of an orange grove in Florida, resulted in the marriage here of Anous Hemmway, Inverness, Fla., and Beth Tilley, daughter of George Tilley, orchardist.

Last fall, while packing apples on her father's ranch, Beth wrote her name and address on several wrapper and added: "Who reads this, please write."

Hemmway bought the box of apples during Christmas week in Florida. He read, came and conquered.

IMMUNITY IN MEASLES SERUM

Doctor Rudolf Degkwitz Reports Successful Experiments With New Preventive.

MEDICAL SCIENCE INTERESTED

Hope to Conquer the Most Deadly of all Children's Diseases—Danger in Public Apathy and Ignorance of Infectious Malady.

Manchester, England.—Dr. Rudolf Degkwitz announces in the Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift (an authoritative publication) that he has succeeded in conferring immunity to measles by injecting a serum prepared from convalescent patients.

"This may prove to be one of the greatest epochs in preventive medicine," writes a medical correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. "In his last series of 1,700 cases Degkwitz claims that all the contacts incubated were completely immunized or so protected that the disease was developed only in its mildest form and there was no untoward result."

"If these results are confirmed and the method can be effectively and generally applied, the result should be an even greater saving of life than has accrued from Jenner's discovery of vaccination."

Most Deadly of All.

"Measles, the most deadly of all the diseases of childhood, continues to be the least controllable of the scourges which regularly afflict our people," the Guardian's correspondent says warningly. "With the possible exception of influenza there is no form of epidemic disease in face of which preventive medicine is so helpless. The causes for this are mainly two. In the first place the disease is not only highly infective but its infectivity is highest before the symptoms can be recognized. The child which contracts measles has three or four days in which to infect his family, his friends and his school-fellows before it is known definitely that he is suffering from measles at all. The second cause is public apathy and ignorance of the dangerous nature of the complaint."

"Half a century ago there appeared to have been some justification for regarding measles as a trifling disorder, something that every child must 'get over,' and the sooner the better. Owing to the operation of the still mysterious laws which govern changes in type of disease, scarlet fever, which was justly dreaded, has given place in evidence and ceased to be one of the major dangers of childhood; diphtheria is also much milder in form and its dangers can almost be eliminated by the early use of anti-toxin. But measles has become more deadly just by year."

Recent Epidemic.

"The present writer can recall one recent epidemic of measles in a large school town which slew in six months precisely the number of children that had succumbed to scarlet fever in the same town. Yet it is still not an unknown thing for a mother to put the child to bed with a case of measles so that they may all 'get over it' together; and it is the common complaint of doctors that they are not called in until the child is blue from pneumonia and beyond all aid."

"Compare this apathy with the horror of smallpox. Yet, before the introduction of vaccination, when smallpox was regarded as the national plague, the death rate from this cause averaged 430 per million. In 1915 the death rate from measles was 1,380 per million. Neither the government nor the local authorities seem to have wakened up to the danger represented by these figures. We continue to have enormous sums of money on the hospitalization of smallpox cases, very little effect on the prevalence of the disease, but English vaccination for measles is very widely provided."

"Scarlet fever is comparatively mild; the notification of diphtheria is optional and, in three days of development as against ten in measles, practically in shapeless."

If you don't take the trouble to get vaccinated, you will not get the disease.

DOG HEARS MASTER BY RADIO

Torrier Cuts Capers as He Recognizes Owner's Voice Calling Him Over Wireless.

Lexington, Ky.—An Alford terrier in the radio receiving room of the University of Kentucky heard his owner at Pittsburgh, Pa., call him. The owner, F. Paul Anderson, dean of the university, was speaking from the Washington broadcasting station. The dog was sleeping in Anderson's room when he heard his owner's voice.

Anderson says he has no information concerning the past 1921.
